Penrose Fields: Former RAF Homes in Lincolnshire Selling Fast

A collection of former RAF homes located on the disused Lincolnshire military base, RAF Scampton, are almost sold out. The properties, formerly owned by the Ministry of Defence, have been refurbished by private real estate owners, Annington, and are on the market at a starting price of £147,000.

Just 10 Homes Remain at Penrose Fields

Since being placed on the market, Annington says just a quarter of the homes remain available for sale. The development, called Penrose Fields, consists of a collection of two and three-bed terrace and semi-detached homes.

Upgraded Features and Refurbishments

The remaining 10 homes have been upgraded to include new fencing and front doors, and have been redecorated throughout with a fresh coat of paint and brand new flooring. Some also feature new kitchens.

"At Penrose Fields we are bringing existing housing stock up to modern standards and making them available for local people to buy. The development has proven incredibly popular with the local community, civilians and Armed Forces personnel alike, and we have even seen a number of first-time buyers move out of Lincoln to put down roots here." - Louise Saunders, Head of Sales and Marketing for Annington

Louise Saunders also urged interested buyers to get in touch with the selling agent before it's too late, stating that this is the last chance to buy one of these homes in the village.
