

Print

Aspiring artists given painting supplies in donation |

NEW art pieces are now proudly on display thanks to a recent donation.

Linton-on-Ouse Primary School received canvases, oil paints and brushes from Annington to support its annual art exhibition, which featured work by pupils inspired by their community.

Davinia Pearson, headteacher, said: "The children have really enjoyed the opportunity to be creative and inspired by their own community.

"We want to thank Annington for their support. Having these additional art resources has allowed them to try new materials and create special final pieces.

"The pieces created for the exhibition show just how proud the children are of Linton-on-Ouse."

The donation is part of Annington's ongoing work in the areas surrounding its homes. Annington's rental development, The Linton Collection, is located just 10 minutes from the school.

Marketing manager Stacy Whitehead said: "While we provide much needed rental homes in this thriving village, we also want to make lasting contributions to the community we're working in."

Linton-on-Ouse Primary School in North Yorkshire received canvases, oil paints and brushes from Annington to support its annual art exhibition, which featured work by pupils inspired by their community. Image: Bailey Cooper Photography